

A model for training physicians specialized in primary health care in Chile

Modelo de formación de médicos especialistas en la atención primaria de salud de Chile

Núñez Serrano, Oriele

Silva Peña, Ilich

Toro Núñez Correo, Daniela

© All the contents of this journal, except where otherwise noted, is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution License. Introduction: It is an analysis about the strength of Program for specialization of medical doctors in Urban Primary Attention of Health Care. This work focused on the idea of guided the futures process of the training in the medical field. This case is relevant for countries with a strong emphasis in the Primary Attention as is the case of Chile. Goals: To expose the systematization of a model for training to specialist medical doctors. Methods: It was used a qualitative methodology with analysis of interviews and documents. Results: It shows five different pillars into the model of training to specialized medical doctors. Conclusions: It discuss the integration of areas in the process of training.