

Microhabitat and reproductive traits in populations of the frog, Batrachyla taeniata

Diaz,

Sallaberry,

Valencia,

Differences in reproductive traits are related to climatic variability in Chile, particularly amount of rainfall and water availability. The most important difference is in the reproductive mode, namely that clutch and egg sizes are modified without changes in size of females. -from Authors