

Panic attacks in a patient treated with isotretinoin for acne. Report of one case

Crisis de pánico en un paciente con acné tratado con isotretinoína. Caso clínico

Poblete A, Catalina

Herskovic M, Viviana

Eva C, Pedro

The use of isotretinoin as a treatment for acne is related to psychiatric syndromes such as psychosis and depression. On the other hand, several drugs have been identified as causing panic attacks. A relationship between dermatologic and psychiatric disease has also been established. We report a 20 year-old male who started to suffer panic attacks after using isotretinoin for acne. © 2007

Sociedad Médica de Santiago.